Seniors, Social Service League have new home

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

The board of selectmen and the Social Service League finally crossed the finish line with the purchase and sale agreement for 91 Sohler St. - a.k.a. Willcutt Commons, the building constructed by the League for use by the town as a senior center.

"In any marathon, the last 350 yards are the hardest," said Steve Gaumer, chairman of the board of selectmen. As for the last piece of the agreement, the length of time that the League would be allowed to lease an office in the building for a nominal fee, Gaumer said: "This haggle over a five-year stretch is the last 10 yards of the marathon."

At the selectmen's meeting on Nov. 10th, the board and the League finally closed that 10-yard gap, to uproarious applause from the packed-out room.

"I think someone would have dived across the table at them if they'd said 'no' again," said one attendee after the meeting. General consensus around her confirmed that this may not have been too far off. Thankfully, the parties reached a compromise and physical violence was avoided.

The League will lease the second-story office for 15 years at a nominal rate of $1 per year. With that agreed upon, the purchase and sale

Military medical teams on the front lines of war zones constantly face this challenge, as do medical staff in trauma centers like that at South Shore Hospital.

Many medical veterans believe that their time in the service both honed their own skills and benefited their patients. This definitely rings true for five South Shore Hospital general surgeons who trained and served with the U.S. Navy and another doctor who is an Army veteran.

Their training has been a win-win situation both for these surgeons and the hospital, which opened its licensed Level II Trauma Center in 2008. Since then it's admitted more than 4500 trauma patients with serious injuries.

UPDATE

Solar stalled

Legislation could end bottleneck

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset jumped on the solar energy bandwagon just in time to see it grind to a halt at the state level.

Utility companies are only required to net meter a certain percentage of their load. Net metering is when a company pays a municipality for producing energy, as Cohasset would be doing with the proposed solar photovoltaic array at the old Cedar Street landfill.

National Grid is fast approaching the cap on how much net metering it has to provide, and a long list of projects has been queuing up since April as municipalities clamor to take advantage of a federal solar investment tax credit that expires at the end of 2016.

When it finally gets all its permits in order, Cohasset would be jumping onto the end of that long list. But the town is still working on the closure permit for the landfill, and until it gets that, the developer can't obtain a post-closure use permit and move forward with the project.

Until it gets that, Cohasset isn't even on the waiting list.

New legislation is pending at Beacon Hill that would either do away with the net metering cap or raise it to 1,600 megawatts statewide, which would drastically ease the bottleneck effect that is taking place under the existing structure.

Legal Briefs

Attorney at Law

STANDING GUARD

While minors are generally protected and cared for by their parents, there are times where a child may need a separate individual to attend to their legal rights because the minor has inherited assets or no longer has a parent qualified to make legal decisions on his or her behalf. In these cases, a guardian may be appointed (through the court or through a will) to take care of the child and/or his or her assets. In some cases, the natural parent may care for the child, but a guardian might be appointed to handle his or her property. A guardianship does not sever the legal relationship that exists between a child and his or her biological parents.

HINT: A guardianship may be terminated when the child reaches the age of majority; a judge determines that a guardianship is no longer necessary or beneficial; or the guardianship's sole purpose was to manage the child's finances, which are exhausted.

POLICE BEAT

Missing teen found after lengthy search

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Missing teen

A teenager from Burlington, Mass. who was visiting friends with his parents in Cohasset went missing on Sunday, Nov. 8, and ended up wandering into the Scituate fire station off Route 3A about 6½ hours later, police said.

The teen's parents went to the Cohasset police station around 4:30 p.m. to explain that their 18-year-old son, who has emotional issues, was walking with his mother and then took off running; she lost sight of him in the area of N. Main Street and Joy Place. When the parents arrived at the station, their son had been missing for about an hour. They were worried he may have tripped, fallen or hurt himself or might be lost, police said. Calls to his cell phone went right to voicemail. At that point it was getting dark and the temperature was 48 degrees and dropping. The boy, who is under the care of a physician at Massachusetts General Hospital, was not dressed for the cold.

Police contacted the wireless carrier that was able to triangulate the pings from the boy's cell phone to the Sohler Street, Joy Place and Red Gate Lane area.

Police K-9 units from Cohasset, Hingham and Scituate were called to assist in the search. The State Police helicopter unit with forward looking infrared radar, dubbed FLIR, was also called to detect heat signature on radar as police continued to scour the area.

Hours later, the Scituate police called saying the boy had wandered into the fire station there looking dazed and confused. He apparently had thrown his cell phone in the woods in Cohasset and kept running after he left his mother and then got lost in Scituate. He was reunited with his parents, police said.

Identity theft

A 52-year-old Cohasset woman reported to police on Tuesday (Nov. 3) that she had received a letter from MasterCard confirming her change of address to Keystone Heights, Florida. The problem was she had not moved nor had any plans to do so. She called the credit card company that told her she might be the victim of identity theft; there was already $7,000 in fraudulent charges on the account, police said. She had opened the account on Sept. 25 and had not used the card. The change of address and charges occurred on Oct. 19.

Police said she is working it out with MasterCard and will not be out any money.

Sugar in tank

A 38-year-old Beechwood Street woman reported to police last week that sometime over the past year someone had put sugar into the tank of his 2005 Honda All Terrain Vehicle that had been housed in his shed.

MVA

There was a chain reaction crash involving three vehicles around 7:19 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 5, on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) between Red Gate Lane and Stop & Shop.

Police said the vehicles were all headed north when a 2011 Acura, operated by a 49-year-old Cohasset woman, who was the last in line, struck the back of a 2015 Subaru, operated by a 65-year-old Cohasset man. The impact pushed the Subaru into the back of a 2012 Volkswagen, operated by a 44-year-old Cohasset man. The Acura was towed; the Subaru and Volkswagen were drivable. The driver of the Acura was cited for following too closely on a state highway. The accident snarled rush-hour traffic for about 25 minutes, police said.

Dispute

A 56-year-old Beechwood Street woman reported to police last week that she has been having an ongoing dispute with her next-door neighbor. She was prompted to call police after she was out in the backyard and her neighbor allegedly gave her the "finger." Police spoke with the neighbor, who is a 63-year-old man, and he denied having done so. Police explained to the woman who complained that the incident is not really a police matter.

MVA

At 4:45 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 7, police responded to a two-car accident on King Street (Route 3A) by the entrance to Avalon. A 2010 Toyota Corolla, driven by a 38-year-old Houston, Texas woman, was attempting to make a right turn into Avalon when the 2011 Toyota pickup truck behind her tried to pass her on the right and a collision ensued.

The 23-year-old Cohasset man driving the pickup truck was cited for failure to use caution when passing on the right.

There were no injuries and neither vehicle had to be towed, police said.

Wanted

Police checked the background of a man who was walking on Route 3A toward the train station and had been reported by a caller as suspicious on Saturday, Nov. 7, around 5:42 p.m. As it turned out, the man, who is from Connecticut, has a lengthy criminal history in several states for offenses that included armed robbery and assault.

There were three warrants for his arrest from West Virginia, Idaho and Michigan but the State Police agencies in those states refused to extradite him, so police had to let him go. He had been visiting a friend in a Cohasset apartment. Police made sure he got on the train and left town.

MVA

On Sunday, Nov. 8, there was a two-car crash on King Street (Route 3A) by Rose Hill Lane, police said. A 2008 Toyota sedan, operated by a 32-year-old Brockton man, had just made a left onto 3A out of Sunrise Assisted Living to head toward Hingham and was getting up to speed when struck from behind by a 2009 Mercury sedan.

The 20-year-old Hull woman driving the Mercury was cited for following too closely on a state highway. Both vehicles were towed but there were no reported injuries, police said.

MVA

On Monday morning, Nov. 9, around 7:16 a.m. there was a two-car crash on Chief Justice Cushing Highway by Leo's Gulf, police said. A 2008 Honda sedan, operated by a 17-year-old Scituate girl, pulled out of the driveway at Leo's to make a left toward Scituate when struck by a 2011 Hyundai, operated by a 59-year-old Scituate woman headed north in the inside travel lane.

Apparently a vehicle stopped in the outside lane to allow the Honda to make a left, but the Hyundai did not see the car and there was a collision.

There were no injuries; the Honda was towed. The teen driving the Honda was cited for failure to use care when entering a state highway, police said.

REGISTRY OF DEEDS

O'Donnell to speak at library

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell has been invited to speak to the residents of Cohasset at 10:30 a.m., on Wednesday, Dec. 2, in the Meeting Room at Paul Pratt Memorial Library at 35 Ripley Road.

The short speaking program will touch on the historical nature of the Registry and the Register's efforts to modernize and computerize the vast number of Norfolk County real estate records. The Register will also speak about the various consumer initiatives at the Registry. The Register will be available to answer individual questions.

Members of the Register's staff will also be available to assist in providing information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act. On-site work stations will be available to provide the status of a mortgage discharge, print a copy of a deed or provide a demonstration on how the Registry's On-Line Land Records Database works.

On-site work stations will be available to provide the status of a mortgage discharge, print a copy of a deed or provide a demonstration on how the Registry's On-Line Land Records Database works.

Although Registry staff cannot provide legal advice, they will be able to answer basic questions, provide general information, take a document for recording and assist in filling out a Declaration of Homestead form.

Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is at 649 High St., Dedham. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website: norfolkdeeds.org. Residents in need of assistance can call the Customer Service Center at 781-461-6101, or email at registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

RED LION INN

Hearing on possible violation

The board of selectmen, in conjunction with the Cohasset Police Department, will conduct a public hearing on Nov. 24 regarding a possible liquor license violation at the Red Lion Inn.

At 4:18 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 4, police responded to a call from general manager Heinrich Lutjens, who reported finding a man asleep in the bar area after a wedding the night before. Neither patrons nor staff are permitted to remain in the bar area more than an hour past closing unless they notify the police. Police Chief Bill Quigley said this measure exists to prevent after-hours drinking.

The wedding guest was intoxicated and was belligerent with the officers. Police took the 26-year-old Walpole man into protective custody until a friend picked him up at the station at 9:30 a.m.

Because the selectmen act as the liquor licensing authority for the Town of Cohasset, neither the police nor the Town Manager has the authority to find a violation or lack thereof; that is the sole responsibility of the selectmen. Therefore, the matter has been placed on the board's next agenda, Nov. 24th, close to the beginning of the meeting.

In an unrelated matter, the management of the inn seems to be in flux. A new assistant manager was hired and Lutjens informed the selectmen earlier this week that the following day would be his last. This was out of compliance with the formal notification process required by liquor license regulations.

The office later received a call from a third party stating that Lutjens would not be leaving. Lutjens confirmed this afterward in a letter.

The selectmen agreed that they should do their due diligence to clarify the true status of the inn's management. The establishment is required to have a full-time manager, and he or she must be approved by the liquor licensing authority.

Army veteran James Adams made the trip from Cape Cod to join the stage of veterans honored at the Deer Hill School by invitation of his granddaughter, 5th grader Claire Harvey.

HOLLY HILL

Events

Holly Hill Farm is at 236 Jerusalem Road. To register or for more information on the following programs, visit: hollyhillfarm.org or call 781-383-6565.

Farm Stand open: On Saturdays and Sundays, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. until Dec. 5. The farm grows and sells its fresh, organically grown produce including: A variety of winter squash, tomatoes, Swiss chard, kale, arugula and other greens, potatoes and more. Jean creates organic bouquets from the flower fields. Sweet Holly Hill Honey is available. The farm partners with local organic farms such as Langwater Farm in North Easton, and stock fresh Middle Eastern hummus and salads from To Dine For.

Many other offerings are available such as handmade soaps and beeswax candles from Back to Basics; and goat milk soap from West Elm Farm; organic Red Gravy sauce from Valicenti Pasta Farm in N.H.; Dean's Beans Organic Coffee beans. Brown Boar Farm will make deliveries of their sustainably raised pork and beef on Nov. 14.

See Holly Hill's website for a link to their price list for 2015 and information on pre-ordering. For weekly notification of specific produce and other offerings at the Farm Stand, send one's email address to: friendsofhollyhillfarm@gmail.com Holly Hill Farm.

Seventh annual Holly Day Fair: Saturday, Dec. 5, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Find the perfect gift for everyone on one's holiday list. The farm will feature local artisans in its heated greenhouse, wreath making workshop with holly and greens harvested from the farm, hearty winter fare, hot beverages and music in a fun holiday family event.

Farm Pantry: A Community Service Program for Teens ages 15 through 18. Ongoing opportunities through November. Free - family membership suggested. This program for teens is becoming one of the farm's most popular. Students explore organic growing methods as they help to sow, grow, harvest and deliver fresh produce for local food pantries in Cohasset and Hull, as well as, Father Bill's Place in Quincy. Early in the season, tasks help ensure the successful growth of crops. Later in the growing season the focus shifts to harvesting crops. Students are welcome to attend one, two or all 12 sessions.

Participants will exit the program with documented hours of community service (a graduation requirement for some local students), a letter of recommendation and a sense of accomplishment in helping to make fresh, local produce available to food pantries. Students are required to complete an application and write a letter of interest in order to participate. Forms are available on the website. Questions? Contact Education Director Jon Belber at 781-383-6565 or jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com Holly Hill Farm.

School Partnerships: The Farm teachers joined the South Shore Charter Public School first and second graders (Jane Sullivan's Pod) at the Glades in North Scituate. There we gathered seaweed to bring back to their garden. The seaweed will enrich and replenish the soil in hopes of a plentiful harvest next year.

Fall is the best time to plant garlic as evidenced by the numerous school gardens that now have a crop of garlic planted for harvesting next July. Several schools joined us in baking garlic bread in their school kitchens, along with some schools that cooked potatoes and kale chips. The Friends is eager to work with any new schools that would like a School Farm Garden, K through 12.

They will host 75 kindergartners from the Blackstone School in Boston this week at Holly Hill Farm.

DON'T MISS THIS

Local artists open studio doors Saturday

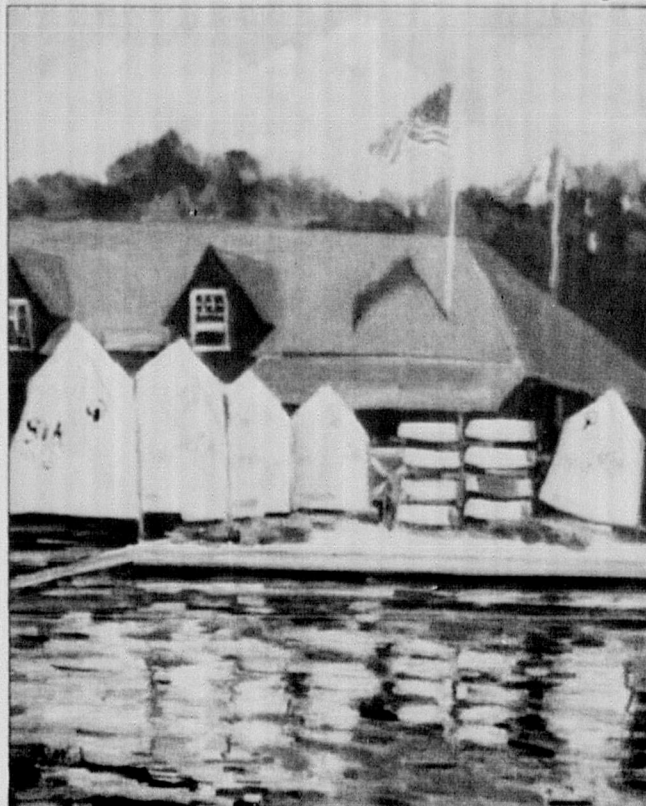

Most often, an artist's studio is a sacred place of creation from which visitors are invited to "Please Stay Away." But this Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., everyone is invited to come on in and visit four working studios of Cohasset artists and as well as works on display at the new Willcutt Commons, just off Sohler Street near the town pool.

Textile artist and printmaker Nancy Connolly, and painters JoAnne Chittick and Alix White have teamed up to organize the event. Any art tourists can pick up their studio tour maps at 91 Sohler St. and enter these worlds of ideas and materials while the doors are open. Works on display range from prints to jewelry, photography to paintings, from familiar artists some new to the Cohasset scene.

Chittick's paintings reflect familiar local scenes, strong colors and engaging compositions. "Much of my work is local landscapes, focusing particularly on water scenes of Cohasset: Cohasset Harbor and channel, Little Harbor, lobster boats, and sailboats."

Printmaker Danguole Rita Kuolas' works include collagraphs, woodcuts, hand made paper, 3-D paper art pieces and digital prints. Prints are where she says she found her artistic voice.

stone, carving a wood block, assembling a collaged plate or incorporating digital media, I am fascinated by the technical and the physical aspects of creating an image," Kuolas said. "From the first time that I carved a linoleum block at the age of 12, I have been a printmaker."

Others showing their work include: Amanda Montgomery Herzog, Keith Conforti, Kim Ale-mian, Amy Geyer, David Ogden, Elizabeth Durant, Velma Begley, Margot Cheel, Mark Connolly, Rita Kirk, Lisa Marder, Jack Nash, Tom Narten, and Tina Watson.

Those who want to make original artwork part of their holiday giving won't want to miss this free event when studio doors will be for a while flung wide open with a welcome sign.

AROUND TOWN

Turn off engines: Stop the idling

Veterans

Hi there Cohasset. I just wanted to start the column with another huge thank you to our veterans, the families who support them, and all our soldiers who still fight for our country. This past Wednesday was a wonderful honor for all. However, we want to make sure to remember and honor them always throughout the year.

Idling cars

I wanted to share something this week that was pointed out by a parent on Facebook based on a conversation in reference to the idling of cars in the pick-up lines at the schools. Most of us have done this.

Well, because if this comment and thread, I learned that it is illegal to idle for more than 5 minutes. So it is not only bad for the environment but illegal too...so, for me I am going to try and really focus on no idling for any length of time now that I am aware if this: not just at schools, but plenty of other spots as well. How about you?

Exhibition

South Shore Art Center will present a national juried exhibition On the Edge in the Bancroft Gallery through Dec. 20. An opening reception will be held tonight, Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. and is open to the public, free of charge. Annemarie Whilton of Cohasset was awarded First Prize for her piece,

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

"Drifting Away," awesome job to you, Annemarie.

Holly Day

The seventh annual Holly Day Fair is coming on Saturday Dec. 5th from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. where you can find the perfect gift for everyone on your holiday list. The fair features local, noted artisans in the heated greenhouse, wreath making workshops with holly and greens harvested from the Farm, hearty winter fare, hot beverages & music at a fun holiday family event. Traditional hayrides will really get you in the holiday spirit! This will all take place at Holly Hill Farm so put it in your book.

Books wanted!

Between now and Dec. 4, St. Stephen's Church is accepting book donations for the Village Christmas Fair Book Sale. All books may be left in the parish office door (off the courtyard). ## GIMME SHELTER

Nina is loving and loyal

By Tammy Hatch

Meet Nina, a 2-year-old small-framed, slender girl with beautiful green eyes and short black hair complimented by a tiny patch of white on her chest. Nina was rescued from an inner city neighborhood after having been abandoned by an owner who didn't believe in spaying, neutering or any other type of necessary veterinary care.

Nina reportedly had three litters of kittens and when she came to us was so infested with fleas she required several rounds of treatment as well as a steroid to control the itching and antibiotic to keep the areas she'd scratched raw from becoming infected.

Despite this harrowing experience, Nina is a very charming girl. She is relaxed, engaging and very friendly. Nina craves human interaction and looks up immediately when she has a visitor. She possesses all the qualities that will make her a loyal and loving companion. Nina needs a caring and committed owner or family who will shower her with the love and attention she so deserves.

With her easygoing personality Nina would do fine alone or in a home with other pets. Come in and see for yourself what a special girl she is.

DOG TALES

Thumbelina hopes for fairy tale ending

I am Thumbelina, a year-old Bluetick Coonhound. There are lots of Rovers, Rustys, Sparkys and even Harrys around, but being named Thumbelina sets me apart. I did have one previous family, but they said I was a bit too high energy for them. I think I would qualify as being shy, and it's a little hard for me to deal with strangers, but I'm working on it.

I do need lots of exercise and a spot to run, and I warn you my nose is so keen I'm liable to chase anything. Translation: you need a fence.

Some doggy companionship would be also great, and I think I would fit best with adults or older children — say, 12 or above — until I get over this shyness thing. I know I'm always supposed to go outside when I get that, you know, feeling, and I'm really working on that, too.

P.S. I was born in the south, but I think I'm

VILLAGE FAIR

ReUUUsable Sale returns at First Parish

On Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. you will have a chance to purchase bargains of gently used items. The annual ReUUUsable Sale returns to Trueblood Hall in the First Parish UU Parish House on Cohasset Common during the Village Fair.

Come and discover house wares, linens, furniture, antiques, children's clothing and toys, jewelry, books, sporting goods, as well as decorative and holiday items at low, low prices. This sale is always a win-win — you will come away with great bargains for yourself and others, you will be helping a charitable organization, and you will be contributing to the health of the planet by reducing waste and giving good useable treasures a second life.

Useable items in good condition may be contributed by dropping them off in Trueblood Hall from Sunday, Nov. 29 through Thursday, Dec. 3.

5 THINGS TO DO THIS WEEK

Padraig O'Malley's Sunday AuthorTalk visit has been pushed up a week to Nov. 15. COURTESY PHOTO

1 AUTHOR TALK: Padraig O'Malley will speak at Sunday AuthorTalks at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library at 4 p.m. on Nov. 15, about his controversial new book, "The Two-State Delusion: Israel and Palestine -- A Tale of Two Narratives." (Note date change from Nov. 22 to Nov. 15.) His book is based on the premise that Israel and Palestine must create a new means of reconciliation if there is to be peace between them. A wine and cheese reception will follow. Admission is free. Seating is first-come, first-seated.

2 COMEDY: Cohasset Middle School Drama Club will present "Circus Olympus," a mythical comedy in two acts. The performance will take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 19, and Friday, Nov. 20, in the Middle School auditorium.

Admission is $5 adults, $3 students. The circus has come to town. Well, sort of. There's no elephant on a bicycle but there are Greek Geeks and have they got a story or two to tell. More specifically, a myth or two: "Pandora's Box," Persephone and the Underworld, King Midas, Athena and Arachne, Perseus and Medusa, and don't forget the Mythapalooza Slam Jam.

3 CAR WASH: Boy Scout Troop 28 is holding a car wash from 8 to 11 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 15 on Route 3A in front of the Good Sport/3A Pizza. Proceeds will help fund an Eagle Scout project benefiting the Cohasset Housing Authority.

4 ON STAGE: Cohasset Dramatic Club presents the romantic comedy, "6 Rms Riv Vu" by Bob Randall, Nov. 13 and 14 at 7:30 p.m., and Nov. 15, at 2 p.m., at Cohasset Town Hall Theater. Tickets are $20 general admission and available at the door or online at brownpapertickets.com/event/2313367. Single ticket and group reservations are available by calling 617-922-0280.

5 COFFEE WITH AUTHOR: Buttonwood Books and Toys, Shaw's Plaza, hosts Coffee & Cookies with author Ellen Stimson at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 20. Stimson will present, "An Old Fashioned Christmas: Sweet Traditions for Hearth and Home," her new book filled with recipes for traditional food and drink, decorating ideas, and heartwarming stories. Buttonwood Staff will be making selected recipes from the book; eggnog and coffee will be served as well. Call: 781-383-2665 to reserve.

surgeon in war zone areas overseas has shaped my vision as a surgeon," said Dr. Christian Corwin of Cohasset. He served in the Navy for 12 years, including deployment to Afghanistan, Guam, and Iraq.

Corwin's working with critically injured patients in these locales gave him a team-oriented approach to medicine, which is something the trauma center stresses.

"When we were deployed as a forward surgical team, we had the closest surgical capability to the point of action," he said. "All we got were bomb injuries. You do 'damage-control surgery' in the military, much like the response to the Boston Marathon bombing. But over there you often have only rudimentary equipment, without all the technological advantages we have here."

One was Dr. Robert Driscoll of Hingham. He served five years of active duty, including one overseas in Guam as a Seabee (Naval Mobile Construction Battalion.)

One of 10 children, Driscoll attended medical school on Navy scholarship. Like numerous other veterans, he followed in his dad's footsteps joining the Navy, plus he wanted to avoid racking up more debt.

Part of his medical school training was at the U.S. Naval Submarine Base in Groton, Conn. There he researched the effects of trauma on the body's systems in an enclosed underwater environment. "This helped me big time later," Driscoll said. "And it was great being in the Navy. It gave me a sense of mission and responsibility in medicine for team care. It gave me a true focus on committing to a goal larger than my own private practice."

He's convinced that the naval training he and his fellow surgeons received was a boost toward helping South Shore Hospital become the only licensed Trauma Center south of Boston, including Cape Cod and the islands.

"The center's been a game-changer," Driscoll said. "It launched us from being an average community hospital to being a stand-out one."

A core of nine general surgeons, plus specialty surgeons, doctors and nurses and others from throughout the hospital care for trauma patients. Driscoll was the first Navy-trained general surgeon on the core when it began, and he welcomed the additional four who came aboard.

"We Navy guys like to stick together," joked Dr. John Froio of Cohasset. He spent 11 years in the Navy, part of the time deployed on the USS Roosevelt aircraft carrier as part of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

"Because we've seen and treated the most complicated traumatic injuries through the military, we're prepared to meet whatever comes along," he said.

Like Froio and Corwin, Dr. Christopher Burns also completed residency at a National Naval Medical Center. Burns served in the Navy for 14 years, including five deployments to Afghanistan as a trauma surgeon. "My travels in the military helped me gain a global perspective on common issues, something I never would have obtained remaining in the comfort of my home community," said Burns, originally from Maryland and now a Jamaica Plain resident. "I use that mindset when working with patients who come from very different backgrounds."

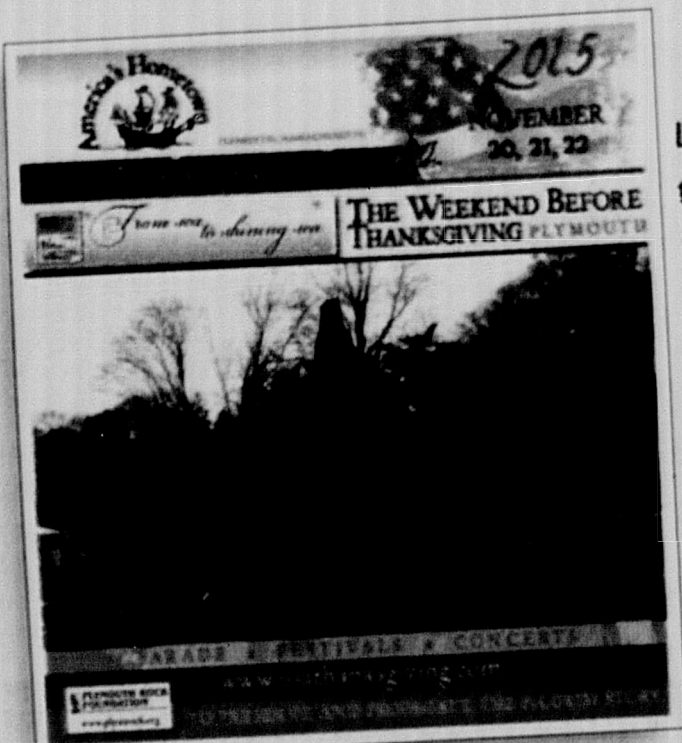

Dr. David Fink's 11 years in the Navy included three from 1999-2001 on the guided missile-destroyer USS McFaul DDG-74, which in 2001 supported Operation Enduring Freedom against Taliban forces in Afghanistan.

"I enjoyed the Navy for the same reasons I enjoy medicine," said Fink who lives in Roslindale. "I worked with a motivated team of skilled people doing meaningful work. I never doubted for a day that what I was doing helped someone else's life in some small way."

Dr. Kimberly Dever of Canton who is an obstetrician-gynecologist at South Shore Hospital, served in the army.

"Without experiencing my early career in the army, I would not be in the leadership role that I am now at South Shore Hospital," Dever said. "My early exposure to leadership opportunities during active duty not only taught me how to trust and value a team-centered approach to care, but also showed me the value in respecting every individual that's part of that team. It's not about rank...a good general needs a good lieutenant."

ROUTE 3A

Plans coming down pike for Scituate Hill

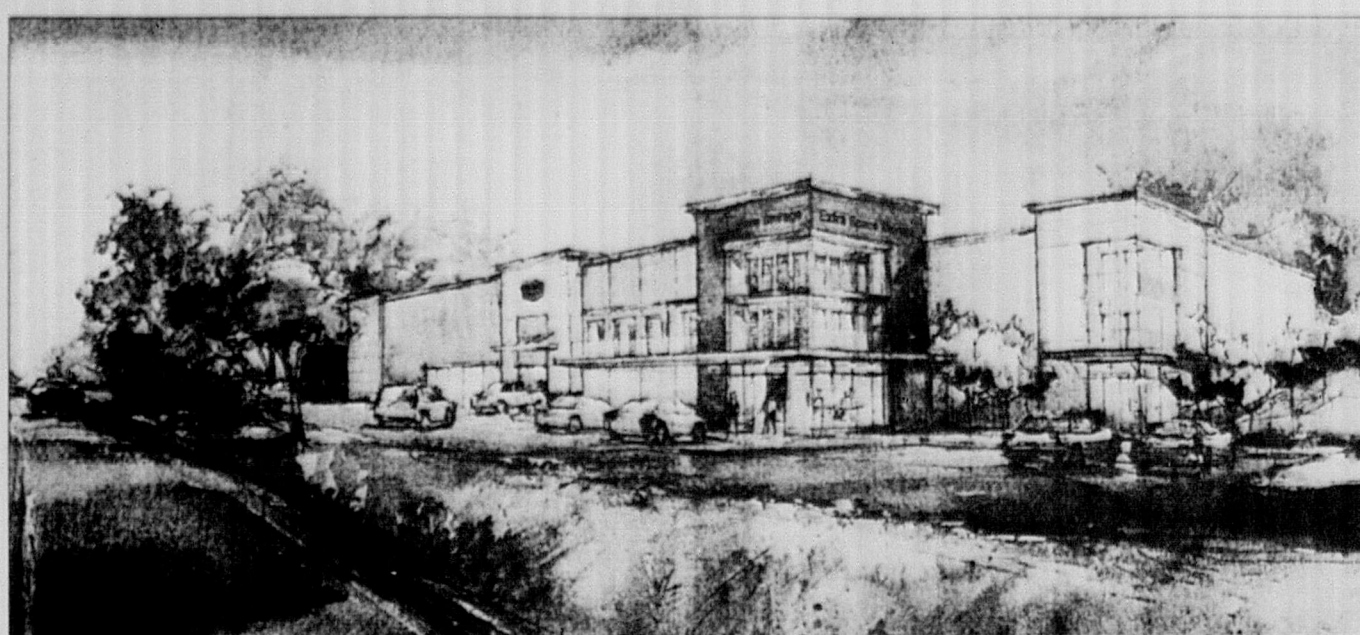

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Developers have their eye on the vacant lot on 3A across from Lower King Street. On Nov. 4th, the planning board considered a new proposal from SSG Cushing Cohasset, LLC.

SSG has proposed a self-storage facility on the big pile of dirt between Sunrise Assisted Living and the sports complex. The facility would include a 58,200 square foot, three-story building on the easterly portion of the site and two smaller buildings on the westerly, with 13 parking spaces between them. A total of 400 to 500 units are proposed.

The developer proposes two driveway entrances, both of them secured by gates with keypad control. The entries would be accessible by the Scituate Hill subdivision road currently under construction to prevent queuing on 3A.

The main access point would be directly across from Lower King Street, with the subdivision road also providing access to adjacent buildings. This would replace the current access drive to the Brass Kettle office building.

MassDOT typically undertakes this kind of curb cut consolidation when possible in order to minimize turning movement conflicts on major roadways. The proposal says this will benefit the overall safety of the area and reduce congestion.

Planning Board Chairman Clark Brewer said it was too early for the board to formulate an opinion on whether the project is right for the town. One important factor for Brewer, and likely for many residents, is the aesthetic of the new facility.

"This type of building can be big and boxy," he said. "Hopefully the design continues on the trend we saw the other night, with the forms being modulated so the boxiness is broken down." The board recognizes that it's important for large new projects to fit in with the surroundings of the town.

At the same time, "the site has been dirt and weeds for quite some time," said Brewer. "Having some kind of useful service there is a good thing."

Brewer hopes that a new development could go hand-in-hand with some other changes he'd like to see. The intersection of 3A and Lower King has been the subject of ongoing traffic studies to determine whether a traffic signal is necessary. Brewer also indicated that a speed limit reduction would be a wise move for that area.

"People coming out of King Street can get a little desperate when there's no break in traffic," he said. A traffic light could also alleviate problems further up the road in both directions, providing gaps in traffic that will help drivers exiting Sohier Street, Dunkin' Donuts, and Hingham Lumber.

The facility would include a 58,200 square foot, three-story building on the easterly portion of the site and two smaller buildings on the westerly, with 13 parking spaces between them.

These items have been on Brewer's wish list for a while, but 3A is a state highway, so no changes can be made without going to the state — a process that is more complex than officials first imagined.

The applicant has been given follow-up tasks and suggestions; the resubmission will be reviewed in December.

WILLCUTT

agreement was complete. All parties signed off, and, barring any objection by the Supreme Judicial Court, the building now belongs to the Town.

It's been a long road: for the selectmen, for the League, and most of all, for the seniors and the staff that serve them, who have been in limbo between their old space at the Community Center and their new space at Willcutt Commons for several months.

Because 91 Sohier St. was partially funded by an endowment, the building came with a use restriction: it must always be available to seniors, first and foremost. Others may use it, as long as those uses don't disrupt senior activities. This is in compliance with the wishes of Mary Hooper, who gave the endowment.

The duration of the use restriction had been a point of contention, but the Attorney General did not allow the Town to put a cap on how long the restriction would last, meaning Willcutt Commons will be here to serve the seniors of Cohasset for as long as the building stands.

Tuesday night, the lease of the office space was the only matter still on the table. The Town had previously offered the League a 10-year lease at a nominal rate, with the option to discuss and renew the lease after the term expired, but the League said that the Town was too eager to kick them out and insisted on a longer term.

Because the League invested their endowment in the building and (mostly) gifted it to the town, they felt that they should have a right to an office in the building for perpetuity. But because the Town (partially) purchased the building, they saw it as a public building and felt that they should not be allowing private occupancy within it.

Selectman Diane Kennedy also feared that things could get awkward if Elder Affairs found they needed the office space for senior programming. Marita Carpenter, president of the League, said there would be no issue with seniors using the office when the League wasn't in it.

"Five years is nothing, considering that this whole thing is largely a gift to the town," Selectman Kevin McCarthy said at Tuesday's meeting. "The Social Service League is being reasonable asking for another five years, believing in their hearts they should have it forever. They've come down quite a bit; I think we should go up a bit."

"We've been around for 250 years," said McCarthy. "What's five years between friends?"

Kennedy questioned whether the board had the authority to offer a lease lasting more than 10 years without special approval from Town Meeting. Town Manager Chris Senior said he would look into it.

In the meantime, the two parties were not going to leave the room that night without reaching a consensus. Everyone agreed that there was no need to hold up the sale while the Town did its due diligence on the details of the lease.

The agreement was reached by way of three separate motions by McCarthy.

First, he moved to agree to the 10-year lease in its existing form. Second, he moved to extend that lease by five years under the same terms, as long as it was legal for the board to do so; if not, then Senior was to bring the matter before citizens at Town Meeting in April. Finally, he moved to approve the purchase and sale agreement in full, including amendments that had been shared earlier in the evening.

The board supported all three motions unanimously by a roll call vote.

Carpenter hopes to see the seniors and staff moved into the building by Thanksgiving.

"We're happy and willing to allow them to be in there on a full-time basis now that we have a deal," she said. "It was really hard to get to the end zone, but hopefully we'll get the field goal kick by the end of the year."

MASTER PLAN

Charting the future of Cohasset

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

What will Cohasset look like in five years? In 10? In 50? Officials are starting to ask these questions as work begins on updating the town's Master Plan.

Master Plans need to be refreshed about once a decade, explained Planning Board Chairman Clark Brewer. Cohasset is currently using a plan that was formulated in 2004. It was created with grant funding and was less thorough than it could have been.

"It was useful," said Brewer, "but it's gotten a little rust on it."

Since 2004, a great deal of construction has gone on in town, including the addition of new residential units and the commuter rail station. Cohasset isn't the same today. Special Town Meeting approved $25,000 to update the Master Plan, and the Town is losing no time diving in.

"The first step is planning for the plan," said Brewer.

For the next half year or so, the Town will be working with the Metropolitan Area Planning Council to analyze where it's at and gather preliminary feedback on what it already has. The team will also consider what other towns are doing; many other municipalities are also in this stage of planning and could have valuable ideas to share.

Phase two, in which the Master Plan itself is actually formulated, will begin in June and should be finished sometime in 2017. If this timeline seems long, consider that the last Master Plan took six years to formulate; this time, the town is aiming for two.

Brewer anticipates having a handful of proposals by the time Annual Town Meeting rolls around in the spring. By then, a ballpark estimate of the

"A Master Plan is important so we can feel like we're in control of our destiny."

Clark Brewer, Cohasset Planning Board

final cost of the plan should be available for voters to approve at the meeting.

"A Master Plan is important so we can feel like we're in control of our destiny," said Brewer.

The Master Plan documents the community's goals in categories like village business district development, housing diversity, and open space. It gets members of the community on the same page so they can work together to reach those goals. It even strengthens local identity.

A Master Plan enables town leaders to manage growth and change, provide orderly and predictable development, and protect environmental resources. At the same time, it promotes open, democratic planning and provides guidance to landowners, developers, and permitting authorities.

The Plan sets priorities for developing and maintaining public infrastructure and facilities. It creates a framework for future policy decisions. It helps different people live and grow in the same space.

Public discussion of the Master Plan process begins on Wednesday, Nov. 18 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. A consultant from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council may be present. At this stage, the conversation will mostly be amongst bodies of town government, but interested parties are welcome to attend.

CONSERVATION

Acreage donated off Beechwood Street

The Cohasset Conservation Trust is pleased to announce the donation of 4.51 acres of upland and marsh off Beechwood Street by local resident Dustin (Dusty) Wheelwright. The property will be known as "Wheelwright Highlands."

"The Trust is honored to be the recipient of this beautiful landscape that links the trust's Churchill Conservation Area and Andrus Island properties, and also abuts town-owned land," said trust President Debbie Shadd. "Together, these special parcels protect a continuous stretch of upland and wetlands in the area between Beechwood Street and Lily Pond. This property adds to the 22 properties and 163 acres of undeveloped shore land, forest and wetlands that we protect and maintain so that it may be enjoyed by future generations."

The Conservation Trust took a celebratory hike across the new Wheelwright Highlands on Sunday, Nov. 8, with supporters and generous donors. The tour was led by abutter Dana Cushing.

The landscape features beautiful marshland, old stonewalls, and views from the high ground on Andrus Island out to Lily Pond on one side and back towards King Street on the other.

The stonewalls date from when the existing marshes were used as agricultural meadows before the dam was built on Beechwood Street. An existing trail on Wheelwright Highlands offers a view over the marsh and connects to a stone-wall path over the marsh to Andrus Island.

Although there is currently no access to the property from a public way, abutting neighbors have offered access over their own property to the trust for occasional private tours.

There are many ways to donate land or protect property from development, through bequest, permanent conservation restriction, donation or sale. To learn more please contact the Cohasset Conservation Trust on its website: cohassetconservationtrust.org.

Founded in 1967, the Cohasset Conservation Trust's mission is to preserve and protect the natural beauty of Cohasset and adjacent towns. ## OUR VIEW

Brave hearts, strong arms

On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918, the Armistice ended the bloody saga of World War I.

This conflict was believed by contemporaries to be the Great War, the war to end all wars, the war to make the world safe for democracy.

Yet the Armistice did not end war, because the enemies of freedom continued to spawn in the fetid waters of tyranny and radicalism.

And every time this threat hunkers down on the horizon, the response of the sons and daughters of liberty is swift and sure.

If the price of liberty is eternal vigilance, the cost of liberty is eternal defense against the enemies of a free society.

Down through the years, this cost has been met by the brave hearts and strong arms of our men and women in the military.

On Veterans Day, which has its roots in Armistice Day, we honor and thank all our veterans.

We acknowledge the courage and stamina of our military families.

Today, as our troops serve in myriad "hot spots" over the world, the response is no different than it was in past conflicts. There are days when we feel like the War on Terrorism may never end.

We give thanks to the brave hearts and strong arms of our veterans. And we revere the men and women, strong and sure as arrows, who currently fight the eternal fight on foreign soil. These are our veterans of tomorrow.

It's fitting that we should cheer and wave flags, and it is even more fitting that we do all we can to ensure our soldiers have a hero's homecoming, quality health care when they return, and all the benefits to which they are more than entitled.

This is not a debt that can be paid in a single day. Let's resolve to carry our gratitude into action.

Join the opioid epidemic fight

By Christine Murphy

The opioid epidemic is taking a huge toll on our South Shore Communities! Not one of us is untouched. In Norfolk County, we have lost 132 people to overdose deaths Oct YTD versus 92 for the full year 2014. Fifteen people/month are succumbing to this scourge in Norfolk County alone. In Plymouth County, overdose deaths have claimed 111 lives Oct YTD versus 78 in 2014. In both counties, the numbers are conservative and under reported.

The public health emergency is much more significant than those numbers illustrate. Emergency Department visits to South Shore Hospital for overdose complaints are on pace to increase 22 percent this year. Government leaders are now leading the charge. We learn about the issue from all of the media outlets on a daily basis. Policies are being examined and changed because of it. Hospitals are re-evaluating safe prescribing policies.

All of these initiatives are being done on a macro basis and the problem definitely needs that focus and attention. However, if we want to exact change in Cohasset, we need to approach it from grass roots basis. I'd like to challenge all of us to ask ourselves a question. What can we as individuals do to insure our children's long term safety?

The coalition believes a key part of the solution is prevention education for both parents and children. The Safe Harbor Cohasset Coalition is committed to being the conduit for information. Support resources can be found on SafeHarborCohasset.org and on our Facebook page. Attended by over 100 people, Hidden in Plain Sight was Safe Harbor Cohasset's fall inaugural event.

On Nov. 19, we will be hosting a Policy Task Force Meeting at 6:30 p.m. at Willcutt Commons. Volunteers are encouraged to attend. This is one way you can impact the local problem. The coalition will be presenting to the Cohasset Seniors at the Café on Monday, Nov. 16, at 10 a.m. and at the Board of Health Meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. The coalition has invited Dr. Joseph Shrand, founder of Drug Story Theater to speak at the Rotary Club dinner on Nov. 30.

One person can make a difference! Make this battle a personal one. Learn everything you can. Talk to your children early and often about responsible decision-making. Listen empathetically to your children. Be a positive role model. Let's save this generation of children before they experiment! It is never too young to have "the conversation". Safe Harbor is a grass roots organization devoted to making a positive difference in our community! Please consider joining.

PANTRY CORNER

Thanksgiving needs

In the spirit of Thanksgiving, the pantry thanks all neighbors, friends, area churches, local organizations, and businesses who, all yearlong, generously support Cohasset families in need. We'd also like to give a special thanks to the Kinnealey family for their generosity in donating delicious turkeys every year.

Thanksgiving needs:

- baked goods for the holidays.

- gift cards to local grocery stores are also very helpful.

Thanksgiving hours: The food pantry will be open Sunday, Nov. 22nd from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and on Monday, Nov. 23rd from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Unfortunately, we will not open for donations on Tuesday, Nov. 24, because of the extended client hours for Thanksgiving. If these

Grateful to community for support

By Rudy Vale

As the proprietor of The Corner Stop Eatery in Cohasset, I wanted to extend a huge thank you to the community for your support in the month of October. You made us proud: With your help, we raised a total of $21,775 for the Breast Cancer Research Foundation!

As you may have read in this newspaper last month, after being diagnosed with breast cancer last year through a routine mammogram, I decided to use the restaurant as a platform for fundraising and awareness. Despite being a private person, I felt compelled to go public with my story because I think it was telling. There was nothing in my life-style or family history that ever made me think I was at risk for breast cancer, and yet it came knocking. With one in eight women being diagnosed with breast cancer throughout their lives, I have made it my life's mission to spread the word and encourage people to be diligent in terms of early detection.

The community was extraordinarily supportive. We had our biggest sales month since we opened two years ago and were so humbled by your generosity. For all those who made a special effort to be here knowing 10 percent of our sales for the month is being donated, visited and revisited, we are grateful. Thank you also to everyone who purchased a raffle ticket for a $20 donation... The overflowing bag of pink entries is a representation of all the good will that's out there.

And just in time for the holidays, we will continue our fundraising with a Lera Jewels trunk show later in the month, with a portion of the proceeds donated to BCRF. It'll be a fun girls' night out: Stay tuned for a date.

More money for research is always welcome, but the most heartwarming conversations for me were the countless women who told me they were compelled to finally make those mammogram appointments. We heard stories throughout the month that moved us to tears... survivors and now thrivers, stories of loved ones affected... mothers and daughters who dined together with a family member in mind. It was incredibly moving to be the place where all of this energy came together as a positive force to combat breast cancer and we are forever grateful.

LETTER

Concerned about dredging impact

For more than 20 years my wife and I have been fortunate to live next to one of Cohasset's most beautiful natural resources, Little Harbor. While we never tire of our view, we have watched with growing dismay the rising level of sand in the harbor and the increased size of the sand bar at low tide. When we moved to Beach Street in 1994 there was no sand bar but now about 20 percent of the area across from Sandy Beach is a sandy expanse. Every year the sand blows directly across Atlantic Avenue into Little Harbor and we lose a little more.

The sand from the Cohasset Harbor is being pumped to Sandy Beach and I fear further damage to Little Harbor.

I am concerned about the impact that the new dredging project will have. The sand from the Cohasset Harbor is being pumped to Sandy Beach and I fear further damage to Little Harbor. When I have spoken to some town officials there appears to be recognition of the problem but little thought to what should be done. At one point I was told that a snow fence would be put up on the Little Harbor side of Atlantic Avenue but even this has not happened.

I expect that our elected and appointed town officials would do their best to preserve our natural resource. A snow fence is not going to solve our problem but it is a start. I hope that we can do more!
— Jack McNamara, 150 Beach St.

LIFE AT CHS

Busy times on many fronts

With the noticeably shorter days and the lack of sunshine, students of CHS were glad to have a day to relax and recuperate in the middle of the hectic week. Many of us spent it worried about colleges, while the underclassmen were happy to catch their breath after term one grades were released online. A shift in class electives brought a nice change to the pattern of the school days — and take it from me, nothing is better than starting your Monday morning with a drawing class and a cup of coffee.

Last weekend brought some upsets and some celebration to the CHS student athlete forefront, with a devastating loss on Friday for our football boys but triumphs for our boys' and girls' soccer teams on Saturday, as well as our field hockey team on Sunday! Though students got to put their pencils down on Wednesday, our athletes were busy on all fronts; there was the expectation of a triple-threat of playoff games within hours of each other this Veterans Day.

Unfortunately, the boys' soccer game against Nantucket got postponed due to the massive rainstorm. However, despite the rain, girls' soccer had a play-off game against Carver, and field hockey faced off against Martha's Vineyard Regional High School at Alumni Field for the MIAA Division II South Semi-Finals.

The juniors and seniors have begun their Powderpuff practices! Senior Henry Butenschoen works to head up the coordination for the seniors while Grace Lucier and Luke Norton finalize their designs for the much-anticipated seniors' jersey and submit orders. The student council also put out an order form for any school gear students may want to purchase. Anything from sweatpants to travel mugs have been brandished with the CHS logo and offered for sale, which is convenient, as I plan to spend the entirety of the winter months in a sweatshirt.

Another revitalized aspect of the school lies just past the fiction section of the library, which reminds me, I've had "The Thief Lord" checked out since October of my sophomore year. 143 TV Studio is a built-in broadcast studio where students in years past have been able to get media experience before even graduating high school.

This year, Senior Dan Toomey and Junior Jack Cunningham have been working to get podcasts off the ground with the help of production manager Don Roine. The studio hopes to cover all the winter sports updates, as well as expand into other aspects of the school, such as Cohasset Theater Company's rendition of "Parfumerie," Arts Night, and other events that always seem to show up in the high school's churning schedule.

As we inch toward Thanksgiving (and the long weekend that comes with it!) we like to remember all the things we're thankful for — such as the fact that almost all of the colleges I'm applying to are on the common app, and that there's a Starbucks and a Dunkin' Donuts about a 100 yards away from each other on 3A.

Myself and other students continue to be grateful for our wonderful teachers, our lovely — albeit unheated — classrooms and, of course, the weekly utility period during the school day that allow us to remember the assignments we missed, panic about them, and hastily get them done. In all seriousness, though, as the college process comes to a close, students are still invested in the Protect and Preserve issue and still hold support for our teachers.

As we end a four-day school week, students ease into their new schedules, prepare for a weekend of studying, and find that applying for scholarships is just as difficult as applying to college. Using only three words to describe yourself is easy; using three words to describe yourself to people you want to impress? Infinitely harder.

—Becca Fredey is a senior at CHS and weekly columnist for the Mariner. She is currently wondering if "caffeinated" is an okay term to use when describing herself on college interviews. The jury's still out.

Football as we (used to) know it

The crowds cheered as the finals seconds of the annual Thanksgiving Day game ticked away and players from Cohasset and Hull shook hands and wished the others a happy holiday. The final score of the 2040 edition of the traditional Thanksgiving Day soccer match was Cohasset 3 Hull 1.

I know what you're thinking; the Thanksgiving Day game isn't a soccer game, its football. You'd be correct if this was about the 2015 Thanksgiving Day game, but it's not, it's about what many see as the inevitable, the eventual demise of the game that so many love to watch; football in America.

This column isn't about the popularity of football, the Patriots, the Cohasset High School Skippers or even pick-up games in the backyard. This column isn't about the astronomical television ratings that the NFL and NCAA are experiencing nor is it about the insane amount of money waged on football each year. This column isn't even about my personal thoughts on football, which I love watching from the comfort of my couch. No, this column is about the fact that despite its immense popularity, football cannot survive in the manner in which we know it today.

The reality is, football has become the sports equivalent of cigarettes; a guilty pleasure enjoyed by many despite the overwhelming data exposing its dangers. Similar to every puff of a cigarette, every hit a player endures, inches them closer towards chronic traumatic encephalopathy, commonly known as CTE. CTE is a degenerative brain disease that is a caused by impact to the head. As with lung cancer and cigarettes, the link between brain trauma and football is real and it's devastating.

A recent study by Department of Veterans Affairs showed that 85 percent of NFL players examined and 79 percent of all football players tested positive for CTE. Let me state that last part again, 79 percent of ALL football players tested positive for CTE. Furthermore, 96 percent of deceased NFL players studied had significant signs of CTE. Former Patriot linebacker Junior Seau was so traumatized by the impact of the hits endured that he eventually committed suicide.

JOHN MCSHEFFREY

Like with the tobacco industry, legal settlements related to CTE are already costing the NFL billions, but it's just a drop in bucket compared to how much they are making. These settlements are only delaying inevitable changes in the game. Determined lawyers have the data and support. If not the NFL, then the feeder programs such as the NCAA, high schools or youth organizations will eventually buckle.

In many ways, the problem with football is us. The devastating data is clear, yet collectively we loyally watch week in and week out. Collectively we cheer for the boys and men playing a game that we know is slowly destroying them. Collectively we support a pastime that is worth billions to the organizations involved with a game that is destroying its players.

Because of the success of the Patriots over the past 20 years, New England has caught up with the country in its obsession of football. With seven trips to the Super Bowl and four championships, Patriots fans have loved the pride of being associated with a winner. However is there anyone comfortable in seeing players like Wes Welker a shell of what they once were because of continued concussions?

Coaches can no longer ignore concussion symptoms, schools are forfeiting games due to injuries and programs are being shut down as towns and municipalities face exposure to liability and increasing insurance premiums. A guy I work with shared with me a story about being hit so hard he has no memory of playing the rest of the game, but he did. Moments like that are changing as the public becomes more aware that high school students are literally dying while playing football each year. Eight high school students have died already this season; there is no way that is acceptable.

The end of football isn't the end of the world. Boston University dropped its football program in the 1990's and the university's popularity and scope has boomed in the last 20 years. Perhaps soccer is football's eventual replacement. The games are played in the same stadiums, it's easy to follow and the unparalleled global interest is starting to penetrate the American culture (however the long halves are not TV friendly). It's not too far-fetched to think that high schools could field three plus soccer teams in the fall rather than fielding a football team.

Some have suggested lacrosse as a possible alternative, but, the game has its own concussion concerns and much like hockey, despite its excitement it's difficult to follow and doesn't play well on TV. Flag football and ultimate Frisbee are two sports seeing a rise in popularity that use similar sized fields, although I can't see them reaching a level of mass acceptance. I think the most logical solution is a modified, less violent version of the game; more like rugby and the early days of football when players didn't have the helmets and equipment that provide a false sense of invincibility.

Despite its strength and popularity, football will inevitably succumb to the realities of the harm it's imposing on its participants. Billions were at stake and the tobacco industry fought hard to suppress the facts, but eventually the truth won in the end. The same will hold true with football. The almighty dollar is presently winning but the clock is ticking, schools are shuttering programs, doctors and lawyers are lined up armed with data and families grieve boys who have died playing a game.

As always thanks for reading, and for those who think I might be crying a bit of wolf, 'smoke 'em if you got 'em'.

UPDATE

Facts and figures from school board

The following was provided by the Cohasset School Committee:

If you have followed the process in the news or have students in our school buildings, you know that the School Committee and the Cohasset Teachers Association are currently working with a mediator to assist in coming to agreement on a new contract. We have had three sessions with an experienced mediator from the Department of Labor Relations, with another session scheduled on Wednesday, Nov. 18th. The School Committee has committed to honor the terms set forth by the mediator, which call for confidentiality outside the mediation sessions.

Throughout this process the School Committee has been mostly silent, other than providing periodic factual updates to the community. However, due to various information being circulated, we add the following facts to the statement made at our last School Committee meeting:

■ While a new contract has not yet been agreed upon, the terms of the previous contract prevail until such a contract is agreed upon. While the teachers do not yet have a new contract, they are not without a contract.

■ The School Committee is honoring teacher step and column increases. What does this mean? On the steps alone, teachers who are in years one to 15 working in our district are receiving a 3.5 percent increase in the current school year. Columns are more complex, and involve obtaining advanced degrees; those increases are being honored by the School Committee also.

■ In the current fiscal year, which began July 1, 2015, the School Committee budgeted $55,000 for professional development for our teachers ($45,000 for tuition reimbursement and $10,000 for conferences). By early September the tuition reimbursement monies had already been exhausted — this has never happened before. There are still conference funds available.

■ The School Committee has put offers on the table which include increases over the three-year-term of the next contract, despite comments to the contrary.

■ Did you know that in our small town with our limited tax base, the combined family income in 42 percent of households is under $100,000?

Balancing the priorities of the town and its residents, with children and without and in all economic circumstances, is of the utmost importance and not an easy task. We look forward to settling a contract that is respectful of all the stakeholders in the process.

REGISTRY OF DEEDS

Positive trends for third quarter

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell is reporting good news when it comes to real estate in Norfolk County, as third quarter sales remain robust, but there are some potential leveling off signs that could be just around the corner.

"The third quarter saw a robust 11 percent increase in properties sold. A total of 5,369 deeds were recorded compared to 4,848 for the third quarter of 2014. This is further evidence that Norfolk County continues to be a destination location for individuals and families to live and work. In addition, the quarter saw a solid 14 percent growth rate compared to last year's period in total dollar volume of commercial and residential sales," said O'Donnell.

One note of caution was the minimal 2 percent increase in the average sale price of commercial and residential property to $647,737. "We saw the average sale price of real estate in Norfolk County begin to slow down in August and the overall quarterly figure reflects this trend. This minimal increase in average real estate price can be partly attributed to limited real estate inventory. However, the small sales price increase is good news for buyers' purchasing powers, especially first-time ones," said O'Donnell.

The mortgage market saw conflicting news. There was a solid 11 percent growth in the number of mortgages recorded for the quarter. However, total mortgage indebtedness (financing) for the same period fell by 15 percent to $3.4 billion. This decrease can be explained by a large mortgage that was recorded against commercial retail property in Dedham, Canton and Medfield during the third quarter of last year.

Another note of concern was the number of foreclosure deeds recorded during the quarter, which increased to 62 compared to 50 during the same quarter last year. O'Donnell said, "Lending institutions continue to work through a backlog of foreclosures that resulted from the economic downturn that occurred in 2008. More disconcerting was the Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recording figure, the first stage in the foreclosure process, which rose to 238 compared to 139 during the third quarter 2014. This figure is a clear indication that while our economy is strong, many of our neighbors still face significant economic hardships."

The Registry continues to partner with Quincy Community Action Programs at 617-479-8181 ext-376 and Neighbor Works Southern Mass at 508-598-0950 to help anyone who has received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage from a lender. Another option for homeowners is to call the Massachusetts Attorney General's HomeCorps program at 617-573-5333.

Homestead recordings increased 11 percent for the third quarter compared to one year ago. Homestead recordings provide limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000.

O'Donnell said, "The Norfolk County real estate story for the third quarter 2015 was pretty much a positive one, but there are warning signs out there. The strong eastern Massachusetts economy continues to serve as an economic engine for real estate activity, especially in Norfolk County. However, while the Massachusetts Association of Realtors reported gains in real estate inventory during the summer months, the levels remain below average."

"Additionally, a possible move by the Federal Reserve to increase interest rates before the end of the 2015 could have a major impact on borrowers. Finally, new consumer federal disclosure rules, scheduled to go into effect in early October, could lengthen the time for real estate closings, pushing some closings from the fourth quarter of 2015 into the first quarter of 2016."

GO ASK ALICE

Consumed by the food photo fad

"Don't eat that!" I tell my husband, who is about to dig into his dinner while I dig into my purse for my cell phone.

It's not to dial 9-1-1. I'm not a "royal taster" there to prevent the monarch from being poisoned.

But his pan seared salmon over steamed asparagus with the delicate Dendrobium orchid garnish looks so pretty — I just have to take a picture of it.

And then share it on social media.

Yes, I'm one of them.

Of all the annoying posts the Facebook faithful must endure — friends constantly bragging about their brilliant kids, movie buffs giving a running commentary throughout a four-hour award show, or rabid sports fans ranting about every play in a "poorly officiated" game their beloved team is still winning by a huge margin — the food photo fad may be the most distasteful (see what I did there?)

My husband, for instance, is not a fan.

In addition to the vexation of being stopped practically mid-bite for a food photo op, my better half isn't thrilled about everyone who knows us through social media knowing what he had for dinner Friday night. Or having to discuss the meal further with colleagues, as he walks into work Monday morning. "That chili sure looked delicious."

I'm not the first, or only person following this food photo trend. Just click on the Facebook news feed any day of the week and you'll find a veritable smorgasbord among your friends' posts.

There are, in fact, several types of "foodie photographers."

There are those who strictly shoot beautifully plated and presented entrees served in the fine dining restaurants they are fortunate to frequent on a surprisingly frequent basis. Sharing these images shows all those in your Facebook world that you appreciate and enjoy the finer things in life.

Those on more diminutive dining budgets tend to go the "home-cook-who-dreams-of-making-it-on-MasterChef" route. Capturing that Caprese salad and rustic veggie lasagna you cooked up on camera shows your Facebook friends, and theirs, your culinary prowess. You know your way around a kitchen. You collect and read recipes, but then improvise making them even better, and pride yourself on your visually pleasing presentation.

"Don't eat that!" I tell my husband as he reaches for the plate on the kitchen island, as I reach for my cell phone on the counter. That pan seared halibut with mango salsa, wasabi mashed potatoes and asparagus looks so pretty — I just have to take a picture of it.

Other foodie photographers specialize.

Some zoom in on the creative, handcrafted cocktails that kick off their dining experience. But be advised — taking too many pics of martinis, margaritas and mixed drinks may be inviting an intervention or at least raise concerned eyebrows among friends and coworkers.

That pear and cilantro margarita with agave nectar and lime juice looks so pretty — I just have to take a picture of it.

Others focus on their meal's sweet ending — from cakes and cobblers to sinfully sweet crème brûlée, sharing images of decadent desserts is likely to win your post many likes, yums and OMGs, particularly if you baked the confection perfection yourself.

That lemon layer cake with vanilla frosting topped with fresh raspberries looks so pretty — I just have to take a picture of it.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' and senators' votes on roll calls from the week of November 2-6.

The House last week teed up and approved several pro-veteran bills. The bills now move to the Senate. Supporters said that the state's veterans are heroes who deserve to be treated, respected and helped. There were no opponents of the bills.

The first four roll calls below are on veterans bills. On all four roll calls, a "Yes" vote is for the bill.

FLAG HOLDERS (H 8178)

House 152-0, approved a bill that would make it a crime to destroy, mutilate or deface an American flag, veteran's commemorative flag holder or a commemorative flag holder representing service in both the police and fire department. Offenders would be sentenced to up to five years in prison. This law currently applies to tombs, monuments, gravestones, trees, shrubs and plants.

REHOMING OF CHILDREN (S 2048)

Senate 37-0, approved and sent to the House a bill aimed at stopping and establishing penalties for "rehoming," the unregulated practice of exchanging an adopted child. Rehoming is when an adoptive parent who feels he or she can no longer care for the child, arranges for another person to take custody of the child without the knowledge or approval of the government and adoption agencies. The parent often posts an ad on the Internet offering the child to whomever wants him or her.

Supporters said this heinous practice must be stopped and pointed out how these exchanges often result in innocent children being taken by sexual predators and abusers. They argued that the state has an obligation to prevent this practice and ensure that adopted children are safe and that everyone works within the state's adoption system.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

Sen. Brian Joyce	Yes
Sen. John Keenan	Yes
Sen. Mark Montigny	Yes
Sen. Marc Pacheco	Yes
Sen. Michael Rodrigues	Yes

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

TWO LEGISLATORS ARE ELECTED MAYOR — Four legislators ran for mayor in last week's city elections. Two were elected and two were defeated. Sen. Bob Hedlund (R-Weymouth) was elected mayor of Weymouth and Steve DiNatale (D-Fitchburg) was chosen as the mayor of Fitchburg. Rep. Michael Finn (D-West Springfield) was defeated in West Springfield and Rep. Tom Stanley (D-Waltham) did not succeed in Waltham.

GOVERNMENT PAYS FOR LAW SCHOOL LOANS (S 816) — The Judiciary Committee held a hearing on a bill providing that the state pay the student loans of anyone who graduates from a Massachusetts law school and practices "public interest law" including jobs at legal services corporations, public defender offices or district attorney offices.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE — The Judiciary Committee also held a hearing on a bill that allows justices of the peace to advertise their marriage services on the Internet (S 831). Current law lists specific places they can advertise including newspapers, telephone books and "other publications of general circulation" but omits the Internet because the law was written years ago. Currently a justice can be fined up to $100 for advertising online.

The agenda also included legislation raising from $25 to $100 the fee for a person applying for a license to be a justice of the peace (S 833).

CAP SALARY OF CHARITY EXECUTIVES (S 875) — Another measure on the Judiciary Committee's agenda was a proposal that would cap at $500,000 the compensation of any executives working for a public charity that takes in $1 million or more in annual gross revenue. The measure also prohibits any members of the board of directors from being paid. The proposal allows the charities to seek a waiver on the compensation question and grant it "only if deemed in the public interest of the commonwealth."

BABY SAFE HAVEN (H 114) — The House gave initial approval to a measure allowing an emergency responder at an agreed upon location following a 911 call to accept the drop off of a baby under the age of seven days. The state would then place the baby into the state's foster care system and begin the process of terminating parental rights. The current Baby Safe Haven program allows the baby to be dropped at a police or fire station or hospital emergency room.

BULLYING OF TENANTS IN PUBLIC HOUSING (S 1984) — The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill creating a special commission to study the prevalence and impact of the bullying of tenants, with a focus on elderly and disabled tenants, in public and subsidized multi-family housing. The commission would hold public hearings across the state and by December 31, 2006 come up with its findings and recommendations.

During the week of November 2-6, the House met for a total of five hours and 50 minutes while the Senate met for a total of eight hours and 41 minutes.

Triathlon planning ahead of the curve

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

As the weather turned cool and damp this week, many minds may have already started thinking ahead to summer – but none more so than the mind of Bill Burnett and his team at Streamline Events, which annually organizes and hosts the Cohasset Triathlon.

The Tri draws about a thousand athletes each year, 40 percent of whom have never been to Cohasset before. This boosts the local economy while creating a sense of community in town during race weekend. Residents line the course to cheer, even though so many of the athletes are strangers. Some stood their ground even during the wind and rain of last year's race.

But this year's race won't be just another triathlon. It will be the 10th annual Cohasset Triathlon. Streamline has scheduled the milestone race for Sunday, June 26, and it's going to be bigger than ever.

Burnett asked the selectmen to approve a race capacity of 1,200 people, in addition to an estimated 1,000 spectators and 150 volunteers. In the past, the number of participants has maxed out at 1,000. Burnett felt that increasing the limit would give them just a little bit more wiggle room and did not believe the increase would impact the duration of the event or associated road closures.

"This is as big as it's going to get," Burnett assured the board. "This is a fine size."

Burnett said he had discussed the change with the Chiefs of Police and Fire and the Harbormaster, and they believed that the number of participants would still be manageable. Fire Chief Bob Silvia was in attendance and confirmed that his department was confident it could cover the event.

Silvia also said that, over the years, the Tri has given the fire department an opportunity to train with equipment and with out-of-town rescue staff that they would not otherwise train with, such as the county dive team. This makes firefighters better prepared to handle incidents outside of the Tri.

After nine years directing the race, Burnett is a seasoned veteran; he approached the board of selectmen with all the appropriate paperwork, including signatures from all relevant department heads.

In addition to police, fire, and Harbormaster, the Sandy Beach Association and the Director of Public Health have given their go-ahead. Naturally, some details are still pending, such as the assignment of temporary food permits by the Board of Health – vendors will not be finalized until April.

Plans for parking, set-up, clean-up, trash and recycling, restrooms, music, and medical care are all in place, based on previous years' experience. A comprehensive map of road closures will be generated in early 2016 – again, based on maps used in previous years.

The race starts and ends at Sandy Beach, with shuttle buses transporting athletes and spectators from parking at the South Shore Music Circus (or, if necessary, overflow parking at the Deer Hill School).

The Junior Triathlon, also directed by Streamline Events, will take place at the Cohasset Swim Center two weekends later on Saturday, July 9. The Junior Tri is only in its third year and will not see any major changes from previous years.

Race for Hedlund's seat heats up

By Ed Baker
ebaker@wickedlocal.com

The race is on to succeed state Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, on Beacon Hill following Hedlund's victory in Weymouth's mayoral contest Nov. 3.

Three candidates -- Weymouth Town Council President Patrick O'Connor, Hingham attorney Brian Cook and Hingham selectman Paul Gannon -- have already announced their candidacy for the seat in a special election, which state officials say would likely occur in March.

O'Connor, the only announced Republican candidate, said his experience as a town councilor and legislative director for Hedlund have given him unique skills. O'Connor said he would use those skills while representing the Plymouth and Norfolk District.

"There are a lot of problems and challenges facing the Commonwealth," O'Connor said. "I have been a legislative director for eight and a half years. I have been able to crisscross the district and meet some amazing people and get a lot of things accomplished."

Gannon, an attorney, Democrat and Hingham selectman since 2014, announced his intention to run for the state senate seat in August. The selectman, who is also a former Hingham school committee member, served as a state representative in the 4th Suffolk District from 1990 to 1994.

Cook, a Democrat and Duxbury resident, said he has strong ties to Weymouth through his involvement with providing legal advice on renovating Legion Field, the renovation of Fogg Library and the Weymouth Hall of Fame.

"My grandfather helped build Fogg Library and he was a state representative," said Cook, a 1975 Weymouth South High School graduate. "During the turn of the century, he ran for state senate and lost by seven votes. If I can make up those seven votes it will be worth it."

Democrats say they will fight hard to regain the district they once controlled.

"The Democrats will be making a spirited campaign to win the seat that had been solidly Democratic for decades," said Alice Arena, the chair of the South Shore's Democratic caucus.

"We are fielding several great candidates at this time and firmly believe that the primary process will augur a winning nominee," Arena said. "In 2000, state Rep. Jim Cantwell nearly won the seat, splitting the district with Sen. Hedlund, who won by only 3 percent."

Hedlund has been representing the district continuously since 1994; he first won the seat in 1990 then lost it in 1992, winning it back two years later. Per Weymouth's town charter, Hedlund will have to vacate his senate seat position prior to being sworn in as Weymouth's third mayor Jan. 4.

The Plymouth and Norfolk District consists of Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Marshfield, Cohasset, Scituate and Duxbury.

O'Connor said a date for a special election would be determined by Stanley Rosenberg, the senate president.

Brian McNiff, a spokesman for Massachusetts Secretary of State William F. Galvin, said the senate could decide not to have a special election.

"It is not required," McNiff said.

However, Rosenberg spokesperson Pete Wilson said the senate president is inclined to set a special election date, which would occur 14 weeks after Hedlund submits a resignation letter to the senate clerk.

"That election date would be based on the date he files the letter," Wilson said. "He could file the letter today and we would adopt an order during the next week to set and election 14 weeks from now."

Hedlund said he intends to submit a resignation letter during the days leading up to when he is sworn in as mayor Jan. 4.

Under this scenario a special election would be held in late March or later that same month, according to Hedlund.

"I had a brief conversation with the senate president last week and I'll probably have a conclusive conversation with him this week," Hedlund said.

State Rep. James Murphy, D-Weymouth said he is considering an election run for the senate seat. Murphy also represents one precinct in Hingham.

"I have been honored to represent our community in the legislature during the past 14 years," Murphy said. "I'm currently considering a run for the open state senate seat being vacated."

Murphy has been serving the Fourth Norfolk District since 2001 and he is currently chairman of the House Committee on Public Service.

State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, who represents the Third Plymouth District, said he is not going to seek the state senate seat being vacated by Hedlund.

"The people in this district have invested in me and I am in a position now where I am able to return on that investment for the district," said Bradley, an assistant House majority leader. "I am very happy with my position in the House and I will not seek the senate seat."

Bradley said he plans to seek reelection to the House in November 2016.

State Rep. Josh Cutler, D-Duxbury, and State Rep. Jim Cantwell, D-Marshfield, have also ruled out runs for the seat.

"Though I love public service this is not the right time for me or my family to take on a different campaign, and I fully expect to be running for the honor of representing Marshfield and Scituate next November," Cantwell said.

A decision should be reached by the middle of November.

"Without a legislative fix, this project will not get done," said Palmer Capital Vice President of Business Development, Scott Kaplan, who presented to the Alternative Energy Committee on Monday on behalf of the developer. Kaplan is optimistic, however, that the legislation will go through.

If it does, then the Town can begin future phases of the project, including several rounds of approval by different parties. Construction would likely begin around early August. The array – proposed at 2,200 panels over nearly two acres of land – could be generating power by this time next year, with an estimated start date of Nov. 1.

The real ball and chain could be the closure permit. Kaplan emphasized that the Town needs to acquire that as soon as possible in order for Palmer to be able to take any further steps. Since summer, the closure permit has been playing second fiddle to the committee's goal to receive Green Communities certification.

On a brighter note, Chairman Shaun Selha informed the rest of the committee on Monday that the Green Communities application had been verbally approved and the Town was just waiting for the official signed document.

Once Green Communities status is granted, the Town is responsible for retaining bylaw changes made at the 2015 Annual Town Meeting

New legislation is pending at Beacon Hill that would either do away with the net metering cap or raise it to 1,600 megawatts statewide, which would drastically ease the bottleneck effect that is taking place under the existing structure.

– the adoption of Stretch Energy Code and bylaws surrounding the ground-mount solar production overlay district at the landfill.

It must continue to abide by the energy-efficient vehicle procurement policy and keep in compliance with the instated expedited permitting process for alternative energy projects.

Most importantly, it must follow through and achieve the 20 percent energy consumption reduction that it has committed to meeting over the next five years.

If Cohasset continues to meet these standards, then it will remain in good standing as a Green Community and can receive the associated grants and subsidies available to these communities.

REC

the beloved pirate ship, a staple in many games of pretend at the former museum, has been given a facelift.

Gone are the long folding tables in the general downstairs area. Gone are the bins of dress-up clothes, trains, and toy food in the playroom. Gone is the six-foot-high rhinoceros in the welcome area – a climbing hazard for little ones, said Recreation Director Ted Carroll, but not to worry; the rhino is in a better place now. He's been adopted by the Taft School in Connecticut, which has a rhino for its mascot.

The Rec department staff has been enjoying the spacious new office since late October. Before, most of the staff shared a large conference table for a work surface in a small office at Town Hall. Now there are enough desks to go around – plus the conference table, named in honor of Jack Worley, who established the Rec department.

Carroll even gets his own inner office, which probably could fit most of the old office inside of it.

They're still putting the final touches on the space, but Carroll anticipates an official opening soon after Thanksgiving. He looks forward to offering classes and presentations for all ages, from cooking for young kids all the way up to SAT prep for teens.

Yoga and Tai Chi classes have already begun using the large upstairs room as a preferable alternative to the cold, hard concrete floors of their old meeting spaces. Over the summer, Cohasset Rec's youngest day-campers enjoyed the use of the museum and playground, which gave them their own separate little world from the chaos and energy of the older kids.

They're still putting the final touches on the space, but Ted Carroll anticipates an official opening soon after Thanksgiving.

Special Town Meeting allocated up to $30,000 for renovations to the Rec center. This will cover carpet work and paint upstairs. Carroll intends to install a small stage so that presenters and teachers can be a little more elevated than the audience. This will also benefit the library, which continues to use the upstairs room for Sunday Author Talks and children's programming with Mama Steph.

Carroll hopes to expand the small theater nook in the corner of the upstairs room. The expanded theater will be perfect for small classes, including the use of a projector and screen, or for private tutoring, which wouldn't be possible in the wide-open room downstairs. The upgrade will include handicap access.

As a final touch, Carroll means to commission a high school student to paint a large Cohasset "C" on the upstairs elevator shaft.

The center will be open for free play during select hours this winter, to be determined once all classes have been scheduled. For more about the Rec visit: cohassetrec.org or call 781-383-4109.

Live for another day

Field hockey headed to Sectional Finals

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset field hockey team is having an incredible season, and it will continue for at least one more game as the top-seeded Skippers played a gem in the MIAA Division 2 South Sectional semifinal, knocking off No. 4 seeded Martha's Vineyard 1-0 in a game that could easily have gone in many directions.

On one hand, Martha's Vineyard goalie Julia Bettencourt was brilliant, making a number of huge saves that kept her team in the game.

Without Bettencourt's brilliance, Cohasset could easily have scored six or seven goals.

"We live for another day," Cohasset coach Laura Giuliano said. "Their goalie was awesome. They have a very good team."

The Skippers pretty much dominated the play from start to finish, keeping the ball in the Martha's Vineyard defensive end most of the game, with much of the Girls edge Carver in thrilling PK victory, head to Finals

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The weather was dreadful, with cold, wind and rain, when the Cohasset girls soccer team faced off with Carver in the MIAA Division 4 South Sectional semifinal, Nov. 11 at Marshfield High School, but after 100 minutes of play and a shootout, the mood was anything but dreadful on the Cohasset sideline when the Skippers escaped with a 2-1 win on penalty kicks, capped by a game-winner from Nikki Federle.

Cohasset won the five-shot shootout 4-2.

The win sends No. 10 seeded Cohasset (13-6-2) to the Sectional Final currently set for Nov. 13

Cohasset scored first on a goal from Shea Kearney from a cross pass from the team's leading scorer Zoe Doherty 13 minutes into the second half, but Carver (No. 6, 14-6-1) tied the game with three minutes left to play, setting up the two overtimes and penalty kicks.

"Carver is one of those teams that the devil you know is better than the devil you don't know," Cohasset coach Deb Beal said. "We split with them 3-2 and 3-2. We knew it was going to be a tough game."

Beal said the key to success was simple.

"We wanted to focus on the things we do well," she said. "The weather was cruddy, and there

All good things

Super Bowl defense ends with loss to Millis-Hopedale

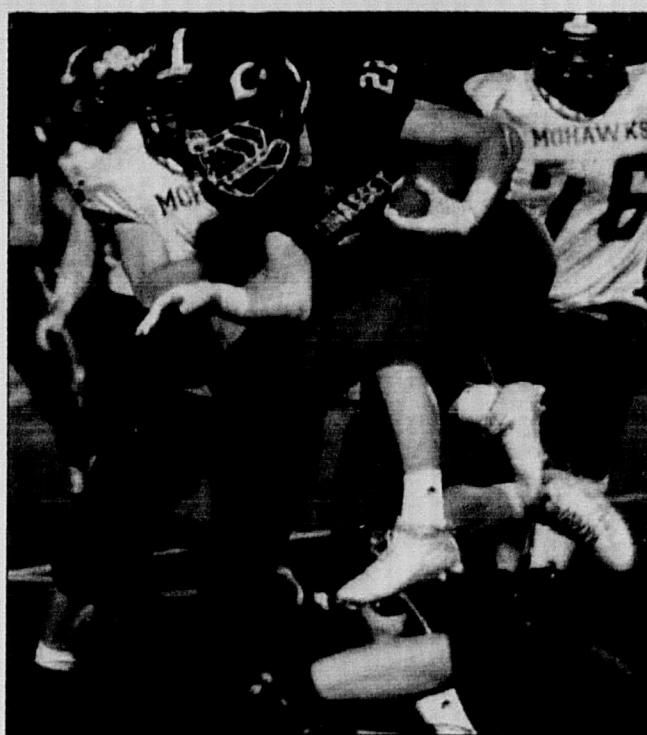

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

All good things come to an end, and unfortunately that was the case for the Cohasset High School football team as their MIAA Tournament win streak and defense of last year's Division 6 Super Bowl championship ended with a 42-14 loss to Millis-Hopedale, Nov. 6 at Cohasset High School.

Millis-Hopedale showed they were going to be a rough matchup on their first possession of the game when they drove 60 yards for a touchdown, all on the ground for a 7-0 lead capped by a 15-yard touchdown by Ryan Smith.

Josh Pierre-Charles chewed up turf on the drive, and proved almost unstoppable with 4 touchdowns.

The Skippers answered with a touchdown drive of 55 yards in five plays. Quarterback Xander Schubert closed it out with a 1-yard run to tie the game 7-7.

Liam Lynch had a pair of big carries on the drive.

From there it was pretty much all Millis-Hopedale as they scored the next three touchdowns of the game to go ahead 28-7 just two plays into the second half on a 40-yard jaunt by Pierre-Charles.

Once they had established the run,

Millis-Hopedale began to pass with excellent results that made it even more difficult for the home team.

The Skippers still held hope of a comeback when Noah Froio hauled in a 40-yard pass from Schubert, setting up a 2-yard touchdown run by Lynch that cut the lead to 28-14 with 5:11 left in was wind. Our goal was to attack. If we got a goal we can't stop attacking. Our defense knew who to cover, and we needed to keep the ball on the ground, attack the 50-50 balls, hit them hard and enjoy the moment. They work so hard to get here."

She was thrilled to get the win.

"It could have gone either way," Beal said. "Both games were 3-2. Both teams came down to the last five minutes. Each of us let down. I'm not surprised it was 1-1. No one wants PK's, but I really think we'd go back and forth and still be 1-1 at 11 p.m."

"If you look at the stats we're the same team. We work as hard as each other. Every kid played as well as they could."

For Cohasset, Beal felt confident in her defense, led by Meg Rosano and Emily Rosano.

"The Rosano twins are back there," she said. "They weren't going to let anyone score."

When the game came down to the penalty kick, Beal felt the Skippers chances were good.

"I'm super confident in PK," she said. "We work really hard on the PK. They win and lose games."

Cohasset will face No. 1 seeded East Bridgewater, the defending champion (18-1-2) over the weekend, probably Saturday, Nov. 14 at a neutral site.

East Bridgewater beat Rockland 3-2 in the semifinal round.

"Anything can happen in the tournament," Beal said. "That's why you play the game. The girls are pumped. They have two days to recover. I think they'll need that long to thaw out."

After the game, former Cohasset boys goalie Pat Federle, now a goalie at Fordham University chipped in on Twitter.

"I think that makes Federle's 3-0 in shootouts," he Tweeted.

As a goalie, he won a shootout against Monomoy in his sophomore year and Carver in his junior year.

COHASSET EDUCATION FOUNDATION

Annual spelling bee on Sunday

Exhilarating -- just one of the many tricky words you'll hear Cohasset students endeavor to spell this Sunday, Nov. 15 at the Cohasset Education Foundation's 8th Annual Spelling Bee! The excitement begins at noon; buzz by the Cohasset's Middle/High School Auditorium.

Each competition runs one and a half hours. The grade 3 competition goes from 12 to 1:30 p.m.; followed by grade 4 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Grade 5 begins at 3 p.m., followed by the middle school (grades 6 through 8) competition from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

T-shirts, ribbons, trophies, and a raffle prize of a $250 Apple gift card plus lots of fun await you. The money raised by the spelling bee supports teachers' and administrators' grants, which may be a capital investment, a pilot project, or professional development. In the 2014-15 school year, the CEF funded 12 grants totaling over $100,000. The grants are typically a one or two time contribution-- not operating expenses.

As a private foundation, the CEF is able and willing to take the risk on something new. If the project proves to be valuable, the school

For Nutcracker Magic: Think Local

Tickets go on sale Sunday

South Shore residents craving a Nutcracker fix this season need go no further than Hanover. More than 75 dancers will bring to life the story of Clara, a young girl swept up in a battle with a mouse king and then transported to the magical Land of the Sweets. Set to Tchaikovsky's beloved score, the ballet includes performances by the Sugar Plum Fairy, the mysterious Drosselmeyer and a dazzling array of dancing peppermints, chocolates and marzipan.

The Nutcracker will run Dec. 12th and 13th with two performances per day, 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. at Hanover High School. Tickets go on sale Nov. 15th at: tututix.com, and are expected to sell out.

Hanover's South Shore Ballet Theatre, was founded in 2008 by Marthavan McKeon, a 25-year veteran ballet instructor (including 1 years with the Boston Ballet School) and former soloist with the Atlanta Ballet. McKeon heads a faculty that includes former Boston Ballet soloists and faculty Leslie Woodies and Stephanie Moy, and former American Ballet Theatre dancer Nan Keating, who was principal of Boston Ballet School's (now-defunct) Norwell studio and before that of the Children's Ballet Workshop, precursor to the Boston Ballet School.

The ballet theatre's 5700+ square feet of studio space is equipped with professionally-sprung floors, custom mirrors and barres and pianos for live accompaniment. The ballet theatre offers pre-professional training as well as recreational ballet for students from ages three to adult.

South Shore Ballet Theatre graduates have pursued advanced training at American Ballet Theatre, Ellison Ballet, Alvin Ailey/Fordham University, Houston Ballet Academy, Gelsey Kirkland Academy of Classical Ballet, Ballet West, Bolshoi Ballet (Connecticut and New York City), Next Generation, Washington Ballet, Miami Ballet, and Carolina Ballet.

COMMUNITY GARDEN CLUB

Bulbs, bulbs, and more spring bulbs

Even though the Community Garden Club of Cohasset is extraordinarily busy at the moment, preparing for Yuletide, the holiday house tour on Thursday, Dec. 10, 24 members were on their knees, planting spring bulbs, at Willcutt Commons this past week. The Garden Federation of Massachusetts highlighted the Club's landscaping work at the Commons by awarding the Club a grant. The Civic Development Committee of the Federation said that they congratulated club for embarking on such a large project: they "...want to encourage local clubs to take on projects such as..." Willcutt Commons. The grant bought bulbs.

Thus, 750 bulbs, all narcissi, were chosen. Narcissi are not usually eaten by deer. They find narcissi to be poisonous to their systems, whereas the deer treat tulips as if they were dessert. The four varieties of narcissi chosen were selected because of their reputation as being excellent naturalizers. Over time the bulbs will multiply by themselves.

Planted were the following varieties: Rijnvelds Early Sensation, King Alfred, Mount Hood, and Thalia. The first is one of the earliest of the narcissi to flower, often two or three weeks prior to other varieties. Alfred and Mt. Hood are established older varieties, long flowering and show themselves mid-season, while Thalia is one of the latest to bloom.

Holes were dug 6 to 8-inches deep, with the soil under the roots loosened to help easy growth. The bulbs were planted in areas where soil may be seen, not in grass, for example. In order to naturalize and remain viable, the leaves of the narcissi must remain after the bloom is spent, until the leaves naturally die back.

If planted in a bed with other plants, or in a wild area, a meadow or such, where they can remain untouched, that is fine. In a suburban setting, leaving dying leaves all over a lawn might be considered unsightly. If one mows the lawn, thus removing the leaves, the value of natural multiplication will be lost. Planting spring bulbs under deciduous trees works well.

In late March, April and early May those trees have not leafed out at all or are in bud. The narcissi have the necessary sun. As they die back, plants which like shade grow around them, hosta would be an example of that, and those new plants cover the leaves of the dying narcissi. By planting the correct plant in the correct place, the gardener is just helping Nature to do its work.

This autumn has been so glorious in Cohasset. Here we are in the second week of November with that warm sun calling us outside. Do go find some bulbs for your own home. You will be so happy you did come next spring.

ing a new initiative called The Graduate Speaker Series. This series aims to provide a rich experience of relevant information to companies and communities across New England. The world changes quickly and it is up to you to stay nimble, stay competitive and navigate a shifting landscape.

Through this complementary speaker series, program directors share their knowledge and expertise in each of their subject areas with professional organizations, corporations, small businesses and nonprofits. For example, Dr. Joshua Weiss, program director, Master of Science in Leadership and Negotiation at Bay Path; Senior Fellow at the Harvard Negotiation Project, a consortium comprised of faculty, staff and students from Harvard, MIT and Tufts universities; and founder of Negotiation Works Inc., has spoken at several corporations through The Graduate Speaker Series on the importance of "soft skills" in the workplace. "Study after study emphasizes the increasing importance of these soft skills on the relational aspects of a job. Employers, now more than ever, are looking for people adept in leadership and negotiation for all levels in their company," Weiss says.

Bay Path's Dr. Lawrence Snyder has developed an eye-opening discussion and lecture called "Phish or No Phish." Dr. Snyder, Program Director, Master of Science in Cybersecurity Management, has been asked to give his expert advice to news stations in order to help explain security breaches, such as the Target cyber-attack. "Phishing attacks have become a very popular method of tricking people into revealing confidential information," Weiss says. "Organizations and home users must be aware of the dangers of phishing and become aware of the common characteristics that can be used to identify potential phishing attacks."

Dr. Snyder brings nearly three decades of cyber experience in law enforcement, fraud and auditing for the U.S. Army and industry. A pioneer in the field of cybersecurity education, Dr. Snyder believes that cybersecurity managers must focus on information assurance, planning, implementing and managing appropriate security controls that safeguard information, and oversee the vital electronic infrastructure of an organization.

With more than 20 graduate degrees and certificates, Bay Path University is proud of the combined knowledge of their program directors and the wonderful information that is available to share with organizations and companies through The Graduate Speaker Series. For more information or to set up a speaker series event, contact graduate admissions by calling 413-565-1332 or e-mail: graduate@baypath.edu.

BUSINESS NOTE

Mathnasium celebrating fifth year

The following was provided by Mathnasium:

Mathnasium of Cohasset is grateful to be celebrating its five-year anniversary. Along with our amazing staff, who works as a team to create a warm welcoming environment for learning, we would like to thank all the parents, students, teachers, fellow business owners, and others who have supported our Mathnasium goal of Making Math Make Sense for all students.

Mathnasium has served more than 1,100 students from kindergarten to grade 12 to date. Students attend from public and private schools as well as the home-school community from 12 different towns. At Mathnasium, we offer memberships, homework help, private tutoring and test prep. Programs are designed for students who may need specific support or accelerated students looking to increase their understanding of higher math. Instruction is delivered in a way that makes sense based on each student's individual learning style.

We are truly thankful having been named one of the Top 25 Franchisees 2014-2015 out of more than 625 centers nationwide.

Feel free to visit us at: Mathnasium.com/Cohasset or give the center a call at 781-923-1295, should you have any questions or wish to discuss how we can support and enrich your student's math education.

ASSESSORS

FY 2016 Real Estate Tax Exemptions

Cohasset Board of Assessors Office is accepting applications for fiscal 2016 real estate tax exemptions. The qualification date is July 1, 2015, for all statutory exemptions. The deadline for filing is March 31, 2016. If you have filed for exemption since July 2015, it is not necessary to file again. The following exemptions are available:

Persons Over 70 Years of Age: $2,000.00 off. Clause 41C – if annual income is less than $20,000 (single person) or $30,000 (married couple), and the value of your assets, excluding your home, is less than $40,000 (single person) or $55,000 (married couple) and must own and occupy for previous 10 years.

Surviving Spouse: No age requirement. $350 off. Clause 17D – also minors of deceased parents and persons older 70 years of age. There is no limit on income, but the value of your assets, excluding your home, must not exceed $40,000 and must own and occupy for previous five years.

Disabled Veteran: $800 off. Clause 22 – At least 10 percent disabled as determined by the Veterans Administration. Purple Heart Award recipients qualify, as well as Congressional Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Air Force Cross, Navy Cross. Other exemptions are available for more seriously disabled veterans and paraplegic veterans. Veteran must have been a Massachusetts resident six months prior to enlisting or live in Massachusetts for five consecutive years.

Blind Person: $875 off. Clause 37 – Must be registered with Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

Tax Deferral: All or part of the tax. Clause 41A – Applicant must be 65 years of age as of July 1, 2015, with income less than $51,000 and must have resided in Massachusetts for the preceding 10 years. All or part of the tax may be deferred. (Effective 2007 the interest rate has been reduced to 4 percent.)

Exemption forms are available at the Assessors' Office in the Town Hall, Floor 2B. For more information, call the Assessors' Office at 781-383-4114, ext. 124.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

Jerry Cogill Jr.

COHASSET – Jerry Cogill Jr., age 37, of Cohasset passed away suddenly on September 22, 2015.

Son of the late Lisa-Anne Laugelle and Jerry Cogill Sr., both of Cohasset, he is survived by his wife, Jaime Marie Kurtz; and his adoring daughter, Lily Anne Cogill, also of Cohasset; his loving sister, Kyrlealea Cogill of Hull; and his nephew, Zakary Jai Purcell; and nieces, Adajean Purcell and Sophia-Marie Dawson. He also leaves behind many aunts, uncles, cousins and friends.

He was a graduate from Cohasset High School.

Jerry enjoyed spending quality time with his family and friends always with a contagious smile and laugh.

He was a loving father and a good husband along with being very involved with the restaur-rant industry for many years as cooking was his passion and his life.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated Saturday, November 14, 2015, at 10 a.m. in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Interment at Beechwood Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, a donation can be made to the "Jerry Cogill Family Fund" at Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, 40 South Main Street, Cohasset, MA 02025.

BUSINESS NEWS

DeRensis again named Super Lawyer

Paul DeRensis, Cohasset Town Counsel, was named in November 2015 as one of 2015's New England Super Lawyers along with three other members of his firm, Deutsch Williams Brooks DeRensis & Holland, P.C.

DeRensis' practice is concentrated in the area of municipal law, and he was one of only 13 lawyers given recognition as a Super Lawyer in the state, local and municipal law category throughout the entire six-state New England region. This is the 11th time he has been so recognized, a record for this category. This recognition follows his being named in March 2015 as one of the Boston Globe's Top Rated Lawyers of 2015 as published in the Wall Street Journal and Boston Globe Legal Leaders magazine of Boston's Top Rated Lawyers of 2015.

DeRensis is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, and is admitted to practice in New York and Massachusetts and in various federal courts including the United States Supreme Court. He serves as Town Counsel to a number of Massachusetts municipalities. DeRensis serves on the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Municipal Association and the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association. He also, by appointment by the Governor, serves as Public Member of the State Board of Medicine and a member of the State Local Government Advisory Commission.

DeRensis is a seven term incumbent selectman of a municipality and previously served as an elected member of a Municipal Planning Board and a Municipal Finance Committee/Advisory Committee.

The list of 2015 Super Lawyers is assembled by Thomson Reuters in conjunction with Boston magazine based on peer nominations by attorneys, independent research conducted by the Thomson Reuters research staff, and peer evaluations by practice area across the six New England states aimed at selecting as Super Lawyers the top 5 percent of New England attorneys in more than 60 practice areas and reflects both peer recognition and professional achievement verified through a selection process to determine New England's best.

Safety Tip of the Week

This time of year we see increase in the amount of deer and car collisions. When a deer runs across the road, always expect another one. Although they can occur on any road at any hour, the most frequent times are from sunset to midnight and during hours just before and after sunrise. Warning signs such as this are commonly placed where in areas where frequent deer strikes have occurred. COURTESY PHOTO

- ## Sudoku
- Level: Challenging
- ### Here's How It Works:
- Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

- ## HOROSCOPE
- ### Salome's Stars
- ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your ruling planet, Mars, allows you to assume a sense of command that can help you turn a chaotic workplace situation into one that's orderly, productive and, yes, even friendly.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Getting a relationship that's been stuck in a rut up and running again depends on how far you want to run with it. Be honest with yourself as you consider which decision to make.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be wary of rumors that seem to be coming from everywhere this week. Waiting for the facts before you act means never having to say you're sorry you followed the wrong lead.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A difficult personal matter might prompt you to turn to a trusted friend to help you sort through a maze of emotional conflicts. The weekend should bring some welcome news.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Some
- of the new people coming into the Lion's life could play pivotal roles in future personal and professional matters. Meanwhile, an old friend might have an important message.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A delay in getting things moving on schedule can be a blessing in disguise. Use this extra time to do more research so you can buttress any of the weaker points with solid facts.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might need to get involved in a personal matter before it becomes a serious problem. Also, be wary of someone offering to mediate, unless you can be sure of his or her motives.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Taking sides in a workplace or domestic dispute could prolong the problem. Stay out and stay cool. Then you can be friends with both parties when things settle down.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A friendship has the potential to become something more, and with this week's aspects
- favoring romance, you might feel that this possibility is worth exploring.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The new job you want might require you to relocate. If so, keep an open mind and weigh all the positives and negatives before making your decision.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new relationship seems to be everything you could have hoped for. Congratulations. Meanwhile, it's not too early to get some feedback on that new project you're working on.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might have decided to get out of the fast-moving current and just float around hither and yon for a while. But you might find that the new opportunity is too tempting to turn down.

BORN THIS WEEK: You believe in bringing out the best in people with kind deeds, loving words and recognition of their "special" selves.
